

Bletchingley Players – formerly BADS, Bletchingley Amateur Dramatic Society – have been entertaining villagers for more than 40 years – staging a wide range of productions from farce to serious drama and evenings of comedy and entertainment.

The public face of the Players is the actors you see on stage but, as with so many organisations, so much more goes on behind the scenes, with a whole range of activities that attracts people of all ages and from many different walks of life.

We welcome new members who can bring their particular skills to the group... from carpentry to design, painting, printing, making props, lighting and much much more, as well as those who can act and produce/direct.

If you are interested in joining, then please contact the Secretary, Susan Sarti on 01737 646225.

Our next production will be on October 21,22 & 23.
